Shirting Madras 20c and 25c Quality 15c

Where else can you buy these popular and always desirable Shirting Madras at such a favorable price? You'll not find anything for Men's Shirts or Boys' Blouses that will compare with these splendid madras; white grounds with oval striped or figured patterns. They will launder beautifully and give lasting service. 20c and 25c qualities Monday for 15c a yard.

Striped Silks $1.25 Quality, yd 75c

Satin Striped Habaut Silks of excellent quality and a good range of patterns, in pretty stripes and new color combinations. And, for women's Blouses there is nothing more beautiful. 36 inches wide, regular $1.25 quality, per yard 75c.

REMNANT SALE Continues Monday

And, while the unprecedented selling of the past two weeks has reduced the assortment very materially, there still remains many short lengths of some of the most desirable fabrics. Of course, there isn't the unlimited quantity that prevailed at the beginning of the sale—but if there's anything in the lot that you can use, it is a bargain too good to miss.

MARKET DEVELOPS GREATER BREADTH ALONG MORE LINES

Great Volume of Trading in War Shares Is Absent, With Railroads and Other Stocks Coming in for Their Part.

NEW YORK, July 31.—By comparison with the heavy trading, and wide movements of the earlier days in the week, the market today was inclined toward the prosaic. Speculation was more along conservative lines. The outside demand for war shares fell off largely and the extent of their rise in the week brought up the question of their stability at prevailing prices. Accordingly a tendency to shift speculation to other lines in the market developed greater breadth. The widest movement was still in the war groups but fertilizers and railroads figured prominently in the transactions. Total sales were 280,000. Par value $1,425,000.

BOSTON, July 31.—The market showed good underlying strength in spite of the torpedoing of another steamer. The rails are acting much better and will soon be leaders. Conditions are right for a long expansion in this country and it cannot much longer be delayed.

OF INTEREST TO

MINER, PROSPECTOR AND STUDENT.

A series of articles dealing in a practical manner with subjects of interest to the miner, prospector and student who already has attained elementary knowledge of field work and seeks information which may be applied in productive effort, will be published each week in the Mining Section of the Sunday Review. Today's issue contains the following installment.

Part Six

BLOWPIPE TESTS

These blowpipe tests can be used in conjunction with the Field Tests as run in previous issues of The Review for verification of the elements tested for.

The bond tests are supposed to be obtained with oxides; the other tests are in general true of all compounds not expressly excluded, and results alone stated. The course to be followed in case of interfering elements is briefly stated.

Abbreviations used:
O. F.—Oxidizing Flame. R. F.—Reducing Flame. S. Ph.—Salt of Phosphorus.
On Coal—is meant, on Charcoal.

CHROMIUM—Cr . . . (sulphur, selenium, and arsenic should be removed by roasting; lead necessitates a gentle heat)—

With Borax or S. Ph.—O. F. Reddish hot, fine yellow-green cold.
R. F. In borax, green hot and cold.
In S. Ph. red hot, green cold.
With Soda—O. F. Dark yellow hot, opaque and light yellow cold.
R. F. Opaque and yellowish-green cold.

Interfering Elements.
Manganese—The soda bead in O. F. will be bright yellowish-green.

COBALT—Co . . . On Coal, R. F.—The oxide becomes magnetic metal. The solution in hydrochloric acid will be rose-red, but on evaporation will be blue.

With Borax or S. Ph.—Pure blue in either flame.
Interfering Elements.
Arsenic—Roast and accority with successive additions of borax. There may be, in order given: Yellow (iron), green (iron and cobalt), blue (cobalt), reddish-brown (nickel), green (nickel and copper), blue (copper).

Copper and other Elements which Color Strongly—Fuse with borax and lead on coal in R. F. The borax on platinum wire in O. F. will show the cobalt, except when obscured by much iron or chromium.
Iron, Nickel, or Chromium—Fuse in R. F. with a little metallic arsenic, then treat as an arsenide.

Sulphur, or Selenium.—Roast and accority with borax, as before described.
COPPER—Cu . . . On Coal, R. F.—Formation of red metallic metal.

Flame—Emerald-green, or azure-blue, according to compound. The azure-blue flame may be obtained if it will etch said marks on glass.

Trace—A red spot in the slag.
FLUORINE—F . . . Etching Test—Put some of the pulverized substance in a small iron dish or mortar or lead vessel and saturate with sulphuric acid, heat, until white fumes arise, hold a piece of glass (previously coated with wax and then scratched through to glass with an instrument) if fluorine be present, it will etch said marks on glass.
